Antibody Films Celebrates One Year Anniversary

Consistent productions, alliances, joint ventures mark company's first year in business.

Los Angeles, CA – May 1, 2007 - Antibody Films celebrates its first anniversary today, bringing to a close an inaugural year of remarkable accomplishments including multiple feature films and the development of strong partnerships.

The company has recently wrapped the first unit of filming on its third production in just over six months. Dead Air (starring Bill Moseley, Patricia Tallman, and Anthony Ray Parker) promises to be a significant crowd-pleaser based on the early press coverage and response already seen from horror genre fans. The film is targeted for release in the fourth quarter of 2007.

In each film, the company has kept within modest budgets, but has gathered increasingly impressive casts, including Corbin Bernsen, Seth Adkins, Adrienne Frantz, Dan Lauria, Moseley, Tallman, and Parker, among others.

Antibody's 2007 strategic alliance with Diversified Video Enterprises, Inc. has generated strong revenues and provided "in-house" postproduction services, and ongoing discussions continue with partner Public Media Works to establish a multi-million / multi-picture film fund for feature productions through 2009.

Chris Aronoff, Antibody Films' co-founder and producer, notes that "It's exciting to see the groundwork that was laid in the early part of 2006 now paying off in a steady stream of productions, introductions, and joint venturing opportunities. We're pleased with these accomplishments and are looking forward to the upcoming year's projects."

Fellow Antibody co-founder and producer Jesse Lawler agrees: "On our one-year anniversary, we have one film ready for sale, another in late-stage postproduction, a third in production, and multiple additional opportunities on the horizon. It's been a great first year."

Antibody Films' success has garnered much industry attention over the last 12 months, with increasing coverage from over 25 industry and specific genre-focused publications including Daily Variety, Fangoria, BloodyDisgusting.com, and DreadCentral.com.
